The AAFPRS
American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery

ITS HISTORY
The American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery (AAFPRS) was founded in 1964 and represents more than 2,500 facial plastic and reconstructive surgeons throughout the world. The AAFPRS is a National Medical Specialty Society of the American Medical Association (AMA). The AAFPRS holds an official seat in the AMA House of Delegates and on the American College of Surgeons board of governors.

ITS MEMBERS
The majority of AAFPRS members and fellows are certified by the American Board of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery, which includes examination in facial plastic and reconstructive surgery procedures, and the American Board of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. Other AAFPRS members are surgeons certified in ophthalmology, plastic surgery, and dermatology.

ITS PURPOSE
The AAFPRS was founded in 1964 as an autonomous professional society representing the specialty of facial plastic surgery. The mission of the AAFPRS is:

- To promote the highest quality facial plastic surgery through education, dissemination of professional information, and the establishment of professional standards;
- To achieve understanding and recognition of the specialty of facial plastic surgery by the medical profession, hospitals, and other medical care entities, legislative and regulatory bodies, and the public at large;
- To define facial plastic surgery as a specialty that requires intensive training and competence, embodies high ethical standards, artistic ideals, commitment to humanitarian service, and a desire to enhance the quality of human life;
- To serve as the public’s information source on facial plastic surgery; and
- To assist members in the practice of facial plastic and reconstructive surgery, guiding them in the delivery of high quality, cost-effective medicine and surgery.

With over 2,500 members, the Academy is the world’s largest international association of facial plastic surgeons and the only organization dedicated solely to the advancement of facial plastic and reconstructive surgery.
President's Report

I am very honored and blessed to have been elected president of the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. I thank the Nominating Committee who looked favorably upon me for this position and the membership who have put their trust in me. I am grateful for all the members who have worked so hard and long in the committees, on the Board, and as teachers and leaders in this wonderful family of ours. I extend my gratitude to our founders and the past presidents who have stood at the helm through smooth sailing and rough waters. Through their wisdom and leadership, we have weathered difficult times and have come through them better and stronger than before. The hard work and courage of the Academy's leadership has earned for us recognition throughout organized medicine both here and abroad.

Over the last few years, it has been my privilege as treasurer, to have worked with presidents Stephen S. Park, MD; Edwin F. Williams, MD; and Fred G. Fedok, MD. Intrinsic and extrinsic factors were buffeting the Academy's wellbeing. Decline in membership, decreasing industry support, lower numbers of exhibitors at meetings, and increasing financial uncertainty were surfacing just a few years ago. This prompted several discussions in the winter of 2015 between past, current, and future presidents, Phillip R. Langsdon, MD, and myself.

Dr. Langsdon, the president-elect, has had 23 years of experience running multispecialty facial plastic surgery meetings and his knowledge and experience has greatly helped in the restructuring, planning, and efficiency of our meetings. The outcome of these discussions prompted two exigent Board of Directors meetings in Boston in April, and Chicago in July of 2015. This resulted in putting into motion plans to review and restructure the architecture and management of the Academy. Dr. Fedok, our outgoing president, has had a very successful year working with Steve Jurich to develop and carry out a plan to bolster the infrastructure of the Academy, begin a turnaround of the finances, and bring in new and dynamic staffing.

My appreciation extends to the Academy's staff, both seasoned and new, whose hard work and loyalty keeps the day-to-day workings of this organization on an even keel.

And appreciation to Mr. Jurich, now celebrating his first anniversary at the helm as executive vice president and CEO of the Academy. He assumed this role at the retirement of Steve Duffy, our longtime friend in this position, and after an exhaustive search led by then president Dr. Williams. Mr. Jurich brought with him excellent credentials and successful experience in managing the financial turnaround of another nonprofit health care organization. He has begun a restructuring of the culture and mechanics of the Academy office. We are now beginning to recover and move forward under his guidance. This task has been monumental and Steve leads with confidence, experience, enthusiasm, and intelligence.

My service will be the third year of a continuum of policy to set straight and stabilize our Academy. In the coming weeks and months, I intend to broaden my engagement with younger members. My goal is to listen closely and to seek new ideas, perspectives, and suggestions so that we can work together to make the Academy an even stronger and better organization.

It is a great honor to be elected president. We are friends, colleagues, mentors, and students. I have learned much in my two positions on the Board of Directors. The last three years as treasurer allowed me to participate very actively in the leadership. I come now with an intimate knowledge of the mechanics of the Academy's governance. I have experienced its unity, discord, and unity once more. I have known that which appeared fraught with danger and helped work through troubling issues to guide our society on its storied journey into the future of facial plastic surgery. It is my greatest honor to accept your trust to lead the Academy. It has been my professional home for a very long time and I will serve with all my energies in its best interests with an ear to the past and an eye to the future.

I urge all of you to contact me with ideas and suggestions for the betterment of the Academy. The Academy belongs to all of us and we must sustain it and contribute to its viability and growth. I will return any email or call I receive within one day if not several hours. Also, please come forward with desires you may have to be on any committee. It will happen. I ask this of all members but especially the younger physicians. And to the younger members, please participate in committees, come to the podium at meetings. All of you are accomplished and have important and productive thoughts and ideas.

Whoever would have thought that a facial plastic surgeon from a small town in Western New England could rise to this post?

As a young practitioner, one of my inspirations was Loring Pratt, MD. He started his practice of otolaryngology in Waterville, Maine in 1948, when I was two years old. In 1986, Lynn and I went on a People to People mission to China led by Dr. Pratt and his wife Jennie. From that small, Maine town, he rose to become the first president of the newly formed American Academy of Otolaryngology and Head and Neck Surgery in 1981.

Lastly, I would not be here without the love, devotion, advice, and support of Lynn, my wife and partner of 48 years. Her calm sensibilities, patience, and guidance have kept this tempest of me somewhat near the ground. I could have not done all of this without you, Lynn. I wish to also thank my talented son, Jason, who did the illustrations for two of the books I edited and several journal articles I have written. And Jody, my wonderful daughter, who has worked in our office off and on since she was 13 doing everything from filing to marketing before moving on to bigger and brighter endeavors.

I am humbled and honored to have been given this torch to carry for the AAFPRS from my small New England town—it is a great honor and a great responsibility.

I am very optimistic about our future. It is a fresh wind blowing over this rock of our specialty. A fresh wind brings us a new dawn. I see for us a new and exciting tomorrow.

American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery and the Educational and Research Foundation for the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery
Immediate Past President's Report

It is the week of September 11 as I am dictating my final installment in Facial Plastic Times, serving as president of the AAFPRS. The significance of the date, requires no jogging of one's memory. In this country and other parts of the world, it is also an eventful time. Current news is tumultuous, with hurricane Harvey having recently decimated parts of Texas and here in Lower Alabama (LA), we have just ducked our participation in the hurricane Irma event. Unfortunately, many of our colleagues in Texas, Florida, and adjacent regions were not as fortunate. Our thoughts and prayers go out to those individuals and families who have suffered the trauma of these natural disasters.

I will not go into the detail of general politics of these times, but it repeatedly brings to mind the Chinese curse: “May you live in interesting times.” The changes in medicine taking place in this country are at the very least interesting. We are now witnessing and living through cataclysmic changes in not only the general delivery of healthcare but also, closer to home, what it means to be a physician and surgeon in this country.

Recently, the results of a public poll reported that 61 percent of Americans are in favor of a single payor health system. I recently read a report that at this point in time the majority of U.S. physicians are employed and do not have an "ownership" in their practice. In this era of the new delivery of health care, there is an increasing focus on the health care of populations. Unfortunately in some of the execution of this concept, there may be a lack of attention to the individual. Confidential, one-on-one personal conversations with one’s physician have morphed into a mechanical interviewing process in which the patient responds to the rote recitation of predetermined questions by the physician. The physician in-turn enters the responses into a template in the EMR computer program. Strangely, the physician is only infrequently looking at the patient during the taking of the “history.” Productivity frequently is the corporate goal in these employed physician scenarios. In my own career, I have witnessed a director of a large primary care practice system proudly report to the supervisory body that they have finally been able to get their average patient visit time down to seven minutes. You can choose your own emotional and cognitive response to this. Mine by the way is—am I supposed to take this as good news?

If you are reading this, I assume you have more than a passing interest in facial plastic surgery. I will regard you as professional brothers and sisters. We are fortunate that we made certain decisions early in our medical education and have aligned ourselves with several medical societies and certifications that garner us recognition and credibility. We are lucky to be facial plastic surgeons. We are lucky to work within a constellation of skills and expertise that may allow us to be a little bit more in control of our practices. We may be lucky that we may have a little bit more control of the way we can practice medicine and deliver high quality and safe care. We must work to preserve that.

For facial plastic surgery to lead and persist, it is a matter of focus. I believe similar comments might be made by the small group of medical specialists that represent the “core” groups engaged in plastic and reconstructive surgery and cosmetic surgery. We have been fortunate to have a common focus in our aligned disciplines and we should continue to engage in collegial activities with these core specialties.

In order for the mission of facial plastic surgery to become ever so clear, a disciplined and tangible focus has to be engendered. This has to be created at the level of the individual and at the levels of our key central organizations—the AAFPRS, the ABFPRS, and the ACPSE. It has to be very clear to all those involved that for facial plastic surgery to remain as a solvent and pertinent voice, there has to be a focus and clear mission. There should be a focus that permeates the culture and activities of all the dedicated members, but especially the Board of Directors and the staff.

Over the last 11 months, our EVP Steve Jurich and I, with the guidance of the past president, president-elect, and Executive Committee of the Board, have been sifting through the “old” Academy. Enumerable members have been queried to firmly ascertain where it has been. This information, coupled with an examination of the environment around, allows a glimpse of where the Academy should be going. We are at the beginning of developing a better focus of what our core mission is. Everything we do as an Academy as we move forward has to be firmly centered in that mission. Key decisions should be aligned with that mission.

For example: Every course offered has to be absolutely consistent with the central mission of the Academy and must be produced with an appropriate margin for a non-profit organization. The organization must be solvent and must be able to fund new projects and to evolve. Break-even is not an acceptable goal.

Every course that is completed has to undergo a postmortem to determine what was good, what was bad, what made financial sense and what did not, and then absolutely capitalize on that knowledge.

Every course endorsement granted has to make sense by being aligned with the core mission of the Academy’s place as the lodestar of facial plastic surgery.

Every course endorsement that does not clearly fit within the mission should be abandoned.

Every course endorsement that appears to be of true benefit to the Academy and its members should be actively sought. Ideally, the endorsement should fill an educational gap and serve as a mutual benefit to the partnering entities of the endorsement agreement.

Industry should be regarded as potential partners, not only to solicit for meeting support, but also to be a collaborative partner in shaping the future of facial plastic surgery in the aesthetic and reconstructive ecosystems.

Partnerships and collaborations with the core specialties should be sought and appropriately brokered to promote patient safety, the sensible practice of facial plastic surgery, and to help guide and advocate in legislative matters.

We should look at our educational assets as products that are valued and should be carefully and strategically offered to other organizations’ meetings. For instance, we have touted our rhinoplasty expertise to be unsurpassed. We should share this with other organizations, but it should be parlayed with a strategy to develop synergies for the Academy and its members.
Finally, the activities of the Board have to always be guided by a firm fiduciary and loyal commitment to members of the AAFPRS.

Back to some of the nuts and bolts, what else is going on? In two weeks, there will be an exciting European Academy meeting in Lisbon, Portugal. The very existence of the meeting is a testament to the worldwide success of facial plastic surgery. In just a few weeks, we will experience our exciting Annual Meeting in Phoenix. Jaimie DeRosa, MD; Louis M. DeJoseph, MD; and Phillip R. Langsdon, MD, have worked diligently to produce a highly efficient, enjoyable, and productive educational program. Stephen W. Perkins, MD; Rami K. Batniji, MD; Andrew A. Jacono, MD; and Steven H. Dayan, MD, are joining forces to produce an absolutely ground-breaking facial rejuvenation meeting in Chicago, April 12-15, 2018.

Incoming president William H. Truswell, MD, is negotiating for chairpersons and directors for our first combined Annual Meeting and International Symposium to take place in Dallas, October 15-18, 2018.

There is always far too much to be related in these columns. The course of the Academy is in a new exciting trajectory. The next few years will be exhilarating.

Thank you for the opportunity and for allowing me to serve as your president during this past year. One last thing, I made a frequent reference to the Academy mission in this narrative. What is the mission? We all have a good idea of what it is. You are part of and live the mission. Undoubtedly, your practice and concepts of facial plastic surgery has evolved over the years. With that in mind, the Board will be working on updating the mission statement shortly to help guide and motivate. Look for a new mission statement in upcoming publications.

The AAFPRS Foundation

Educational and Research Foundation for the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery

In 1974, the Educational and Research Foundation for the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery (AAFPRS Foundation) was created to address the medical and scientific issues and challenges which confront facial plastic surgeons.

The AAFPRS Foundation established a proactive research program and educational resources for leaders in facial plastic surgery. Through courses, workshops, and other scientific presentations, as well as a highly respected fellowship training program, the AAFPRS Foundation has consistently provided quality educational programs for the dissemination of knowledge and information among facial plastic surgeons.

In the early 1990s, FACE TO FACE humanitarian programs were established so that AAFPRS members could use their skills and share their talent in helping the less fortunate individuals here and abroad.

FACE TO FACE: International brings AAFPRS members to third world countries where they treat children with facial birth defects and anomalies.

FACE TO FACE: The National Domestic Violence Project allows AAFPRS members to perform surgeries on survivors of domestic abuse here in the United States, who have received injuries to their faces.

FACES OF HONOR offers free surgical care for soldiers who have been injured in the line of duty. For more information, visit the Web site: www.facesofhonor.org.

All nominations for the Community Service Fellowship Program of the Educational and Research Foundation for the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery are widely respected by the medical community and represents the finest post-graduate program in the world for the training of facial plastic surgeons. Since its beginning in 1969, this program has prepared more than 1,300 highly specialized experts to be educators and leaders in facial plastic surgery. These individuals and their fellowship directors have performed a tremendous service to the Academy and the specialty through the development and dissemination of new procedures, improvement of patient care, refinement of surgical techniques, and the promotion of confidence in and respect for the specialty.

Fellowship directors private practitioners and/or academicians recognized for their teaching and practice of facial plastic surgery. Applicants are encouraged to choose programs that best supplement their residency training, future practice plans, and teaching interests. Fellowship program requirements and curriculum provide a common base for the program. The clinical experience may vary according to individual director’s interest and experience. The interview process is from March 1 to May 31.

All programs follow a standard curriculum. Oral and written examinations are administered after the completion of a 12-month fellowship. To be eligible, applicants must have completed a U.S. or Canadian residency in otorhinolaryngology or plastic surgery that is approved by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME) or the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada (RCPSC). Or the applicant must be board-certified by the American Board of Otolaryngology or the American Board of Plastic Surgery.

Accreditation Council for Post-Residency Specialty Education

The mission of the ACPSE is to promote the highest level of patient safety and superior post-residency specialty physician education through the review and accreditation of training programs in accordance with the high-quality facial plastic surgery program requirements. Facial plastic surgery is a valued and well recognized surgical specialty and requires an oversight accreditation organization to evaluate and accredit the training and competency of its fellowship trainees. The ACPSE will enhance this important component of expertise for the benefit of population healthcare through assessment and accreditation of fellowship level physician education. The ACPSE embraces the standards exemplified by the ACGME and the AMA and has been established to provide appropriate oversight of advanced facial plastic surgery training of physicians who have successfully completed ACGME approved residencies in plastic surgery or otolaryngology.

The OFPSA is a sister organization to the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. The organization was established over twenty years ago when physicians’ offices realized the knowledge and experience of facial plastic surgery practices across the country can be the best resource for their practice and staff. The membership is comprised of practice managers, nurses, medical estheticians, surgery coordinators, billing managers, patient coordinators and other personnel who play important roles in their physician’s office. Through the participation of the OFPSA, members are informed and updated on current topics, marketing strategies, management issues, and developing technologies that affect their practice.

The OFPSA fosters education, practice growth and personal enhancement. As an OFPSA member you are part of a tremendous network of practice decision-makers. This unique group is a sounding board, providing each other with real-life feedback on everything products and services that help a practice run more smoothly to strategies for making each patient visit more fulfilling. OFPSA members play a vital role in influencing the trends of aesthetic medicine.

MEMBER EXPERIENCES:
"Being a part of the OFPSA has been an amazing opportunity, which has allowed me to grow and learn from the experiences of all the members."

Meredith Gilpin, Office of David Gilpin, MD

"Being the only one in my department, OFPSA has given me a wonderful group to go ask questions or share ideas with!"
Debbie Scheib, LPN, ENT Facial Plastic Surgery

"OFPSA sets me up for success at the office time and again. The annual meetings provide me with effective take-aways for me to easily implement within our own practice."
Amy Larsen, Office of Steve H. Dayan, MD

"I know that I could not have survived at the capacity I have without the OFPSA. The education has been a great opportunity for me and my staff. The network of individuals has been priceless."
ReGina Simo, Office of Frank Simo, MD

"This organization has exposed me to how I can be the best in my profession, by giving me the tools to succeed."
Kristi Fritz, Office of Ira D. Papel, MD

"OFPSA gives people that work in the same industry the opportunity to create a bond through their work. Through education and relationships we find value in what compliments the best patient experience in our clinics. After all, providing the best care to our patients is why we do what we do. OFPSA is an incredible opportunity to be apart of something special."
